To whom it may concern.

For some time we were looking to formalise our health and safety procedures. As a small-to-medium sized business we were not able to recruit someone to a bespoke position. Needing to flesh out our requirements, we consulted with the British Safety Council, the Health & Safety Executive and our commercial insurers, Aviva. Following this exercise, we appointed Team Safety Services (TSS) in 2009. We had used the services of some of the individuals comprising the newly formed TSS on an ad hoc informal basis for some years and were pleased to note that they had become a formal, accredited and recognised business.

TSS has, since that time, been an integral part of our Health & Safety Management Group, which also includes our Managing Director, General Manager and both Contract Managers. As part of their retaining brief, TSS attend quarterly review meetings, conduct regular training sessions and are available for consulting on all aspects of health and safety, including legal matters, which arrive on a frequent basis from our key customers.

We would have no hesitation in recommending Team Safety Services to any other company who are considering how to incorporate provision for all aspects of health and safety in to their operations.

Yours faithfully

James Forey
General Manager
